

WILD ALASKAN KING CRAB

The Alaskan Red King Crab fishery is one of the best managed and sustainable fisheries on earth. As a result of low biomass testing, Alaskan King Crab quotas have not been available for the past four years except for a very small quota set last year. Recently, on October 15th Alaskan Fisheries Management announced the Alaskan Red King Crab fishery will reopen due to a significant increase in the biomass of the fishery! We were able to gain access to over 12,000 pounds of Jumbo and Colossal Red King Crab clusters that just arrived at our Santa Ana seafood plant.
